

SAQ PRACTICE – UNIT 2

Preparation

- Three colors of highlighters

Purpose

Some of the SAQs on the AP® World History: Modern examination includes a primary source: either a text excerpt, an image, a map, or some data. Sourcing these excerpts can be difficult—it's hard to produce enough accurate factual knowledge to respond completely to SAQ prompts. This activity introduces you to the SAQ Practice Tool, which is a four-step method that gives you a process you can use when conducting historical analysis while answering SAQs. You will practice this four-step method throughout the year in preparation for the AP World History exam.

Process

In this activity, you will be introduced to the SAQ Practice Tool, which is a four-step process for responding to SAQs that include a primary source.

Start by taking out the SAQ Practice Tool. As a class, you're going to work through a four-step process that will help you expertly respond to SAQs. The steps of the process are:

1. Rewrite the prompts
2. Review the content
3. Analyze and annotate
4. Answer the prompts. (Note that for SAQs without a source, you can just skip the third step.)

Step 1: Rewrite the following prompts in your own words:

- Prompt A: Identify ONE innovation that facilitated trade in the Indian Ocean network in the period from c. 1200 to 1450 CE.
- Prompt B: Explain ONE political factor that influenced trade in the Indian Ocean network in the period from c. 1200 to 1450 CE.
- Prompt C: Explain ONE cultural factor that influenced trade in the Indian Ocean network in the period from c. 1200 to 1450 CE.

Step 2: It's time to start thinking about how to respond to the prompts. While it's tempting to first look at the source provided along with the prompts, you'll probably have more success if you first try to recall what you already know about the topic so that the source doesn't limit your thinking. To do this, organize your review using the AP themes. For this activity, you are asked to recall what you remember about Indian Ocean trade in terms of innovation, politics, and culture. Go through each of these themes with your class and add historical details you remember in the tool. As needed, you can go back into Unit 2 to review, but remember that on the exam, you won't be able to do this. For now, however, the process is the most important thing to focus on.

SAQ PRACTICE – UNIT 2

Step 3: Once you've organized what you remember into the themes, it's now time to move on to analyzing and annotating the source. As a class, you're going to read through the source and try to identify any factors that may have helped trade in the Indian Ocean network. As you work through the source, each time you identify a factor, see if you can connect it to one of the themes from Step 2. When you do, highlight that section of text with the corresponding highlight color from Step 2.

Step 4: Now it's time to answer the prompts. Using the ideas your class came up with in Step 2, along with the annotations from Step 3, you should be just about ready to construct your responses. First, look at the highlighted paragraph to see how the themes align to each prompt. Try to see if you can match the specific theme/evidence to each of the prompts. Choose the theme that will help you construct the strongest response to each prompt.

- A – answer the prompt/make a claim
- C – cite evidence
- E – explain how the evidence supports the claim (often referred to as reasoning)

Your teacher will walk you through constructing a response. To wrap up, review the SAQ Practice Tool's four-step process with your class and be sure to ask any questions you have—you will be using this tool all year so the sooner you get comfortable with it, the better.

Directions: Follow each of the steps below.

Step 1 – Rewrite the Prompts

Rewrite the SAQ prompts. Put them into your own words and make sure to rephrase the task verbs “describe,” “identify,” and “explain,” using the College Board definitions as your starting point. Here are the definitions:

- Explain: “Provide information about how or why a relationship, process, pattern, position, situation, or outcome occurs, using evidence and/or reasoning.”

Rewritten Prompt A:

Prompt B: Explain ONE political factor that influenced trade in the Indian Ocean network in the period from c. 1200 to 1450 CE.

Step 3 – Analyze and Annotate

Read the source provided as part of the SAQ and highlight any text that may help you respond to the prompt. Color code each section according to the theme from Step 2 that it represents. Note: If your SAQ does not include a primary source, you can skip this step!

The following excerpt is from a historical chronicle written circa 1442 CE by Shah Rukh's Muslim ambassador Abd-al-Razzāq Samarqandī.

In pursuance of the orders of God, I received orders from Shah Rukh to depart for India. His majesty provided me with provisions and post horses and I began my journey from southern Khurasan, arriving at the port of Bandar Abbas in southern Iran before departing by ship to the port city of Hormuz.*

Hormuz is a port situated in the middle of the Persian Gulf and does not have an equal on the surface of the globe. Merchants from Egypt, Syria, Anatolia, Iraq, Iran, Central Asia, China, India, and Southeast Asia bring rare and precious articles by sea. Bargains are made either by money or by exchange. Persons of all religions are found in this city, and no injustice is permitted toward any person whatsoever. I stayed here for two months until the favorable time came for departing by sea.

We then sailed from Hormuz to Calicut along the southwestern coast of India. Like Hormuz, Calicut brings together merchants from every city and from every country, and precious articles are brought there from maritime countries, especially from East Africa. From time to time, ships arrive there from Mecca and other parts of Arabia. The town is inhabited mostly by Hindus, but it contains a considerable number of Muslims who are permanent residents and have built two mosques in which one they meet every Friday to pray.

Step 4 – Answer the Prompt

Use your ideas from Step 2 as well as evidence from the excerpt (if you have one) to help you answer the prompt. Don't forget to use ACE to help you construct your response to each prompt.

- Answer the prompt/make a claim
- Cite evidence
- Explain how the evidence supports the claim (show your reasoning)
